Abstracts of the Decisions Rendere Tuesday, March 17. NSQLVENT BANKS - CHECK-HOLDERS - PREFEREN

INSOLVENT BANKS—CHECK-HOLDERS—PREFEREN-CES.

11456. John C. S. Harrison, receiver, vs. Mansur H. Wright, et al. Marion S. C. Affirmed in part and reversed in part. Zollars, C. J.

At the time of the suspension of the Indians Banking company, there were outstanding checks or drafts drawn by the Banking company in favor of various parties and upon differented banks in different cities. The question presented is whether or not these check-holders are entitled to be paid in full. Some of these check-holders were depositors with the Banking company, and purchased the checks upon their deposits in the bank. Others, who were not depositors, paid the paid in full. Some of these check-holders were depositors with the Banking company, and purchased the checks upon their deposits in the bank. Others, who were not depositors, paid the cash, for their checks. Some of the checks were given for collections made by the Banking company for the payees named therein. The company for the payees named therein. The company should be considered and held to be banker's checks, drawn by one bank on another bank. (66 Ind. 172) His bonor reviews the question at great length, and holds that a check in the ordinary form on the drawee's banker, without words of transfer, and drawn on no particular designated fund, does not of itself operate as an equitable assignment of a fund in the bands of the drawee, nor does it operate as an assignment of a part of the drawer's choice in action against the drawee; that there is nothing to create a superior equity in favor of the check-holders as a salars the depositors and general creditors. These drafts were purchased in the usual course of business, the purchasers relying on the solvency of the bank and its credit, and in this respect they stand in the same situation with others dealing with the bank; that those persons who accepted the bank's checks for collections made thereby became simple creditors of the bank, on no better footing than all the others; that those who were not depositors, and purchased drafts for each, must stand in the same condition as all other creditors, and the finding of the lower court in regard to this class is reversed, and as to the others it is affirmed.

MARRIED WONEN—PARTITION.

is reversed, and as to the others it is affirmed.

MARRIED WOMEN—PARTITION.

12041. Parmelia Klinemuth vs. Henry M. Lockwell. Marion S. C. Affirmed. Howk J.

Where a married woman during her second coverture procured land to be sold on her particion, proceeding on interests inherited from her deceased children, she is estopped from therefer asserting any further title or interest in the land in the hands of the purchaser at the particion sale, by reason of an interest she inherited from her deceased husband and of which she could not dispose of by reason of her second coverture. (30 Ind., 387; 64 Ind., 85).

PARNERSHIP PROPERTY—PARTNERSHIP DEBTS.

11512. Levi L. Warner et al. vs. Geo. W. Fanner et al. Marion C. C. Affirmed. Mitchell, J.

Individual excelitors are entitled to be paid out of the individual assets of a deceased partner's estate, in preference to the claims of creditors of the firm of which he was a member. But where one partner purchases the partnership property and assumes the payment of the partnership debts, the partnership debts thereupon become, in respect to the estate of the purchasing partner, the same as the individual debts of such partner, and the two classes of claims stand on soual footing.

TENANTS BY COURTESY—REALTY.

11964. John G. Leuntz vs. Sarah Grieve et al.
Allen S. C. Affirmed. Elliott, J.
Complaint for partition. It is alleged that the appellees, who were plaintiffs below, t' at Ann Ellen Grieve died intestate the owner of real estate, a description of which is given, leaving surviving her her husband, Francis Grieve, and her children, the appellees; that said Francis conveyed all of his interest to appellants; that, by the death the said Ann, the appellants were selzed as tenants in common of one-ninth of the land in form. Or chinarily the title to land is not in issue in a parttion suit. (97 Ind. 27; 98 Ind. 527; 71 Ind. 287.)
But the title may be put in issue, and when it is,
the decree is as conclusive as in any other action.

(89 Ind. 1881). This action seeks partition without any question as 10 title. But the title may be put in issue, and when it is, the decree is as conclusive as in any other action. (89 Ind. 180.) This action seeks partition without any question as to title. If the defendant denies an adjudication on the title he must plead tendering that issue. A married woman can only convey, her lands by a deed in which her husband unites. The husband is a tenant by courtesy, if the wife has an equitable estate of inheritance, notwithstanding the rents and profits are to be paid to her separate during coverture. The receipts of the rents and profits are a sufficient selzin in the wife. And if the lands be devised to the wife, or conveyed to trustees for her separate use, and with a clear and distinct expression that the husband was not to have any life estate or other interest, but the same was to be for the wife and her heirs, in that case the court will consider the husband a trustee for the wife and her heirs, and bar him of his courtesy. The deed in this vests in the wife an estate of inheritance, and there were no clear and distinct records excluding the right of the husband. He therefore had a right for the yoursey. The right of entry did not accrue until his death. Courtesy is a legal incident of the wife's estate of inheritance, and is a right favored in the law, and a husband will not be excluded except by records that leave no doubt of the intention to do so.
